Passports for German and Austrian Envoys Refused

London, Oct. 29.—Passports for most of the German and Austrian delegates invited to confer here on Nov. 5 in an effort to reach a solution of the industrial problems of the central empires have been refused by the British government. Among those who will not come for this reason are Max Warburg, a Hamburg banker, and Herr Von Gwynner, head of the Deutsche Bank of Berliin. It is announced only three Germans and three Austrian delegates are coming for the conference.

Representatives of other countries, including the United States, will attend the meeting, which was called by an association known as the "Fight'the Famine Council," of which Baron Parmoor, judicial member of the privy council, is president.

Judge Milling's interest in the case was at first somewhat mysterious, but finally it leaked out that Morgan's mother was the old black manny who nursed Judge Milling through the tender years of his childhood, and that the lawyer had decided that nothing was too much for him to do to save the son from the gallows.

The first trial found the jury un-

The second trial in Jackson, how-ever, resulted in a conviction and a sentence of death.

Again Judge Milling appealed to the supreme court in an effort to save the life of Morgan.

In its opinion on the case the supreme court refers to Morgan's coun-sel as "defendant's indefatigable sel as "defendant's indefatigable counsel," which indicates to some extent the hard nature of the fight Judge Milling put up.

The court, however, could find no reversible error in the trial in the lower court and affirmed the decree. Summoning all his legal talent, however, Judge Milling renewed the fight and on a rehearing succeeded in persunding the supreme court to reverse its first judgment. The court in its revised judgment, says:
"In our opinion no bill of excep-

But in revising the case on this rehearing we are constrained to the opinion that the defendant has not had an entirely fair trial before an impartial jury. That is, the trial was attended with so many wrongful acts and sayings that in the aggregate, they rendered the trial unfair to the accused."

May Go to U. S. Court.

The court then ordered a new trial for Morgan in Jackson parish again, but Judge Milling would not let the matters rest here and having failed with a motion for a change of venue, applied to the supreme court of the United States to give him the relief desired. That tribunal held, however, that it could not pass on the matter till it was final. Judge Milling has meanwhile ap-plied for a writ of certiorari in the

It is my personal conviction that great indus-trial issues which are being pressed towards solution will not be finally settled until trade unions are given a much larger share of responsibility for control of industry and until the status of the workers is raised."

Mr. Henderson stopped to explain that he was not in a position to speak with a full knowledge of facts of the American situation, but that it appeared to him that the disruption of the president's conference of employ ers and organized workers and th public had been brought about upon

THE SPREAD OF SOCIALISM (BY WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE.)

Senator James Watson, of Indiana, chiefly, that Senator Watson has secuntly read into the record of conferes a list of the socialists employed in the federal trade commission.

The list was long and to persons ment departments and in the government departments and in the government departments and in the government departments.

Now it so happens that Fabian so-cialist is a mild, gentle creature, who believes in the evolutionary principles of government and economics, grad-ually working toward a higher hu-manity, living in more and more ap-proximately just relations.

The program of former President Roosevelt was essentially fabian; the program of President Wilson for the last eight years has been the program of the Fabian socialist. America during the last two decades has been practically going the path outlined by the Fabian socialists of the nineties. The Buil Moosers were essentially Fabian socialists.

They believed in a strongly con-

They believed in a strongly cenralized government which should asormerly were performed by private individuals until gradually the gov-ernment would be in 2,000 or 3,000 years the repository of most of the ordinary organized activities of life. Any man who dreams of a better world in which as human beings are able to endure honest politics, which by the way, they can't endure now, and who hopes to see a time when honest government shall perform services that are now performed for profit, is a Fabian socialist, though he may be astounded to know it. Senator Watson's contention that socialism is becoming conspicuously prevalent in the government bureaus at Washington, The reason for this at Washington, The reason for this is two-fold, first, because secondary places in the government are filled more and more frequently American colleges. American colleges are turning ou young men who aspire to make this better world in which to live. They want to change it; they want to tin-ker with order that is, and the only group or party in American politics that is frankly given over to the joy-ous business of tinkering with the rder as it is, happens to be the socialist party.

The democrats like to tinker but they do it more or less in secret, and on the plea that it is establishing necessary change. One faction of the republicans are Heaven-born kers, but they call themselves progressives, or liberals, or insurgents, or what not. They are not frank about their tinkering. They call their inkering evolution. But the socialists are tinkers and ound of it, And out of American colleges every year are coming earnest, if not eager, young couls, ham-mer in hand, who are forever tapping the nuts and bolts and cams, and prings, and cylinders of civilization, o see if something is not rattling, or jamming, or gumming, that may be tinkered into better shape. And when these young souls want to ally themselves to a political party they call themselves socialists. They are not particularly dangerous. They do not want to overthrow the government. They merely want to improve it. Probably they have a dozen amendments to the constitution, and in the federal trade commission.

The list was long and to persons excited by the word "socialist," one expression used by Mr. Watson to characterize an employe of the federal trade commission, was the epichet "Fabian;" he called a certain employe a Fabian socialist.

To the unthinking, the word Fabian probably appeared as a particularly venomous and deadly type of socialist, and those who knew nothing venomous and deadly type of socialistic, and those who knew nothing about the jargon of socialism probably lost much sleep worrying at nights over the fact that a Fabian socialist was doing sentry duty on the outposts of the republic.

Now it so happens that Fabian socialist is a mild, gentle creature, who worry if they were called socialists, and who from his point of view, are indeed dissatisfied with the present order of things and eager for some sort of cahnge.

Generally in nine cases out of ten they want evolutionary changes and in a few wild exceptional cases they desire revolutionary changes. But the revolutionaries are negligible. The evolutionists are real forces and must be reckened with, call them what you may, socialists, liberals, prog insurgents, or tinkerers with the order that is.

They are coming in larger and larger numbers into public life, into the executive branch, first of all rather rapidly into the legislative branch, though always under as-sumed names, and here and there you find a court that has the same evolutionary tendencies.

And if Senator Watson is going to abolish all the socialists of one kind or another in America, he may as well figure that he is throwing a tremendously large monkey wrench into the machinery of government. (Copyright, 1919, by the Wheeler Syndicate.)
